

Prestonfield House
Dish Cult
13th September

Share:

Edinburgh's best chocolate spots

Indulgent, decadent, and universally beloved, chocolate weaves its rich, irresistible tale through the annals of history and across the globe. From the ancient rituals of the Aztecs to the prolific modern confectionary that graces our shelves, the story of chocolate is long and loved. It appears as part of all kinds of dishes, both savoury and sweet, is used by Michelin-starred chefs and corner cafes and craved by those of all ages and stages. Whether you like your cocoa artisanal and posh, or plentiful and accessible, here's where to get the best chocolate in Edinburgh...

Prestonfield House

✂ Afternoon tea

📍 Priestfield Rd, Edinburgh, Scotland, United Kingdom, EH16 5UT

While on the hunt for the best chocolate spots in town, we've learned that sometimes the most delicious chocolate dessert can't be found among sweet treats in a bakery but is often a hidden gem at a restaurant. Prestonfield House is a stylish and magical venue located away from the bustle of the city featuring historic public rooms where guests can enjoy a drink on the grass.

Apart from the peacefulness of the surroundings, what impressed us the most was the Afternoon Tea experience with a range of savoury and sweet treats. The highlight was the Earl Grey and chocolate orange gateau, ideal for those who crave chocolate but don't want the flavour to be overpowering. But if you find yourself wanting more after you've finished your portion, you can always try their luxurious hot chocolate. Prestonfield House is also a great destination for a weekend away if you want to enjoy the peace a little longer.

Book your table

Reserve now